

Lehigh Corridor Route

pennsylvania
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

- 1 Fairhill Square
 - 2 Taller Puertorriqueno
 - 3 Lillian Marrero Library
 - 4 Village of Arts and Humanities
-  Start/Stop

..... Distance 2.03 Miles

Steps to a Healthier You

pawalkworks.com

Lehigh Corridor Route

1

Fairhill Square

This park hosts festivals, community events and has a children's playground, many large shade trees and walking paths. It was recently renovated to include new lighting and a performance stage titled "El Gran Teatro de la Luna," which has become a significant icon of Philadelphia public art.

2

Taller Puertorriqueño El Corazón Cultural Center

Known as "El Corazón Cultural del Barrio" (The Cultural Heart of Latino Philadelphia), Taller Puertorriqueño uses art to promote community and build bridges between the Latino Diaspora and the Greater Philadelphia region. El Corazón Cultural Center is host to arts and cultural programming open to the public. Events include art education, exhibits, book readings, music and dance productions and more.

3

Lillian Marrero Library

This library branch is named after the community activist and beloved former librarian, Lillian Marrero. It continues to serve its diverse community and offers books in both English and Spanish. Built in 1906, this historic building was first called the Lehigh Branch of the Free Library and was one of only 30 branch libraries in Philadelphia supported by the Andrew Carnegie Library Program in 1903. At the time, this white limestone Grecian-style building was the largest library in Pennsylvania.

4

Village of Arts and Humanities

Established in 1986 by Philadelphia-based artist Lily Yeh, the Village of Arts and Humanities provides space for people in the neighborhood to read, dance, sing, make music and learn. The space offers a network of mosaic sculpture gardens with murals, trees and flowers where people come together to interact and create. The Village also provides year-round arts and educational programs including theater, art exhibits, writing and festivals for all ages.